LIMITS

The property limit for CAPI is $2,000 if you are single and $3,000 if you are married. CAPI does not count your home, car, and certain other resources when figuring out your eligibility.

CAPI applicants cannot have countable income (income after certain deductions have been applied) greater than the maximum benefit rate. While that figure varies depending on age, living situation and disability, the 2018 monthly limit is $900.72 for an individual living in his/her own home and $1,512.14 for couples (if both are on CAPI).

SPONSOR

Usually, if you have a sponsor, their income and resources are considered when determining your CAPI eligibility. Their spouse's income and resources are also considered. This is a process called deeming. Your sponsor's income and resources will not be deemed if:

- You are a victim of abuse, a child who is a victim of abuse, or a parent whose child is a victim of abuse; OR
